

Variable Messaging System

O’Neil’s ONEvms (Variable Messaging System) allows our clients to create customized documents with variable text and images. You now have complete control of your content and messaging with ONEvms. ONEvms streamlines template management by providing our clients with a self-service tool to create and edit customized content and messages within a document.

You can manage all messaging in a centralized web portal and reduce your template versions by controlling dynamic content. ONEvms optimizes template management by providing a higher degree of personalization and customization in every document, allowing you to eliminate the need to maintain thousands of template versions.

ONEvms eliminates hours of template design and reduces template versions by giving you control to insert relevant messages based on need. You can add customized content to documents without having to involve IT, or your service provider.

ONEvms FEATURES INCLUDE:

- Variable Content Messaging
- Business Rule Driven Content
- Editing of Messages and Images
- Client / Provider
